According to data, there has been an approximate 30% increase in BTC over the past 14 days, fueled by a pro-crypto government in the U.S. and a fresh round of rate cuts by the Federal Reserve, which has rekindled traders' appetite for risk. This surge has informally been dubbed the "Trump trade" among traders, as all asset classes, ranging from stocks to bonds, have experienced gains since Donald Trump's electoral victory.

Bitcoin touched a new all-time high of $97K on November 21, as investors continued pricing in a second Donald Trump presidency. Notably, a short squeeze is underway, especially with significant short positions near the $95,000 to $97,000 range. As these positions are liquidated, more buying pressure will push the price higher, potentially sending Bitcoin toward $100,000 and beyond. Now that bullish momentum has been confirmed, the $100k price target is finally in sight.

As of writing the article, BTC is traded at $ 84319.2300, boasting a market cap of $ 1,672.3B, and witnessing a hefty 24-hour trading volume of $ 31.2B. BTC saw a 24-hour price change of 0.41%, with minor fluctuations of -0.10% in the past hour.

Will Bitcoin (BTC) Hit $100K?

Undeniably, the recent presidential victory for Trump has been widely regarded as a positive catalyst for Bitcoin's price upward trajectory. Many in the crypto industry anticipate that a Trump administration will usher in more crypto-friendly regulations.

Gabriele Giancola, CEO of Qiibee, echoed this sentiment, saying to Newsweek: "Bitcoin's performance historically aligns with significant geopolitical and economic events, and the aftermath of the U.S. election could see BTC reaching $100,000 this year or shortly after a potential Trump reelection."

Besides, popular analyst Moustache said in their latest Bitcoin analysis on X: "BTC just started its parabola like in previous cycles."

The analyst shared the chart below showing BTC's price playing out a similar setup as the one that happened just before the 2021 parabolic move.

According to the analyst, BTC is just at the beginning of this cycle's parabolic phase, and if it follows the same trajectory, the price could move exponentially to areas above $100,000.

MN Capital founder Michaël van de Poppe shared similar sentiments, saying that the market could "see Bitcoin go to $100-120K" in the coming one to two months.

Bitcoin's potential to hit $100,000 "continues to hold the highest concentration of open interest," trading firm QCP Capital said in a note to investors.

It added that Bitcoin's spot price, which has been above $90,000 over the past few days, provides the "foundation BTC needs for a move higher."

Meanwhile, Bitcoin analyst Bitcoin Munger shared a Glassnode chart showing intensive accumulation across all cohorts, adding that BTC is likely to go “way past” $100,000.
