Amid a market rally, the price of POPCAT is expected to surge by 170%

The Solana meme-based coin has had a substantial 29.54% gain in value over the last 24 hours. According to the most recent numbers, Popcat is selling for $1.83, which shows how popular it is becoming. In the past twenty-four hours, the value of the digital currency has risen to $2.00, a new record high, from a daily low of $1.41.

The cryptocurrency market has seen unprecedented increases in November, with Bitcoin reaching new all-time highs of over $91,000. Popular cryptocurrencies are also riding the wave of positive momentum; one such coin is Popcat, whose value has increased by more than 20% in the last seven days. This memecoin from Solana became one of the best-performing assets of 2023 with a staggering gain of 2,316%.

Breaking the current resistance level can lead to additional advances for Popcat. The coin might initially aim for a target of $2.50 if its upward momentum continues. If it goes above that, Popcat might have a surge to $4, with the lofty goal of hitting $5, which would be almost 170% gain.

With a reading of 60 on the Relative Strength Index (RSI), the market is showing signs of rising momentum as it approaches the overbought zone. A recent crossover of the Moving Average Convergence Divergence (MACD) lines indicates bullish momentum, with the MACD line above the signal line.

The derivatives market activity of Popcat (SOL) has been growing significantly, according to Coinglass. Recent market movements involving assets located in Solana may be driving the increasing confidence among investors, as indicated by the considerable growth in trading volume and open interest, according to recent statistics.

Strong market indications and Popcat's recent climb point to more bullish momentum. Peercoin (POPCAT) might reach $5 if it breaks through resistance. Adding to the potential profits, Popcat is a promising asset in the present rally due to investor interest and increased derivatives activity.
