According to a post on X from 3iQ on June 20, "We have submitted a preliminary prospectus for The Solana Fund (QSOL) in Canada in relation to an initial public offering."

If receipt of applicable regulatory approvals is obtained, the Fund would be the first Solana exchange-traded product to be listed in North America, 3iQ noted.

The Solana Fund is set with a goal of providing investors with simplified Solana exposure without needing technical expertise. The fund will stake SOL to earn rewards for its investment strategy.

Notably, the announcement comes following the recent approval of spot Ethereum ETFs by the SEC in the U.S., indicating growing regulatory acceptance of cryptocurrency-based investment products. Besides, the filing also demonstrates 3iQ's constant commitment to staying at the forefront of cryptocurrency investment options, potentially attracting more investors.

Significance of Launching Solana ETP

This move of 3iQ represents a big milestone in its development and even the whole crypto industry. This filing aligns with the company's broader strategy of diversifying its cryptocurrency offerings and capitalizing on emerging trends in the digital asset market. The introduction of a Solana ETF in Canada could enhance market liquidity and provide a new avenue for institutional and retail investors to gain exposure to the asset. If approved, analysts firmly believe that it could pave the way for more diverse crypto ETFs in the future.

Step Four: choose the contract trading order type. BTCC contract orders are divided into market orders, limit orders and SL/TP orders.

- Market Order: users place orders at the best price in the current market to achieve fast trading.
- Limit Order: Limit orders are a type of order to buy or sell futures at a price more favourable than the market price. When you buy at a price lower than the market price or sell at a price higher than the market price, the order will be in the form of a limit order.
- SL/TP Order: SL/TP orders are a type of order to buy or sell futures at a price less favourable than the market price. When you buy at a price higher than the market price or sell at a price lower than the market price, the order will be in the form of a SL/TP order.

Step Five: adjust the leverage multiple.

Please keep in mind that operating leverage carries the risk of liquidation. Leverage should be adjusted based on your financial status and risk tolerance.

Step Six: choose the lot size and set the SL/TP price .

Step Seven: after setting the basic data information, users can choose to buy (open long) or sell (open short) after entering their ideal price. Traders should remind that the price cannot be higher or lower than the highest buying price or lowest selling price of the platform.

Step Eight: click the buy or sell button, and the SOL futures contract order is completed.
