New Updates inside application

In the airdrop option, Hamster Kombat has introduced a new “Points” section. This update, detailed in an X post by the team, reveals multiple criteria that are essential to the airdrop process. The items listed in the “Points” section will be pivotal in determining token allocation, as emphasized by the Hamster Kombat team. This latest development promises to enhance the fairness and transparency of the token distribution mechanism within the application.

Hamster Kombat Token Distribution

In this new section, it's evident that every task users accomplish within the game translates into points. Notably, the interface currently displays “TBA” (To Be Announced) in place of specific point values. The latest update reveals that each task item will significantly impact the determination of individual airdrop amounts for players. Currently, there are six key components to the airdrop system: Passive Income, representing profit earned per hour, Earn tasks including daily collections and watching Hamster's YouTube videos, Your referral list under the Friends category, Achievements, telegram subscription, and Keys, which can be obtained through playing minigames in the playground or by solving daily puzzles. Moreover, the announcement teases the upcoming addition of more options to this list, promising an even richer gaming experience.

Buzz in the community

This latest update has sparked massive buzz in the community, with everyone eagerly anticipating the announcement of the airdrop date. Amidst this excitement, a segment of Hamster players has expressed concerns regarding the referral aspect. Numerous individuals within the X community have voiced their worries, fearing that if referrals factor into the airdrop allocation, influencers promoting Hamster Kombat content may claim a significant share. As of now, the Hamster team remains silent on this matter, leaving many players speculating and discussing the potential impact. The community buzz continues to grow as players await clarity on this critical aspect of the upcoming airdrop.

Hamster Kombat aims to onboard the next billion Web3 users

Hamster Kombat ultimately aims to onboard the next billion mainstream users to Web3. A Hamster Kombat spokesperson revealed that their aspiration is to forge the largest and most cohesive community, welcoming the next billion individuals to the Web3 space. To achieve this, they recognized the necessity to illustrate the practical workings of Web3 to the masses. The spokesperson emphasized that the most straightforward approach to accomplish this lies through the medium of gaming. Hamster Kombat's user-friendly design effortlessly acquaints players with the fundamentals of blockchain technology and cryptocurrencies, eliminating any extra complications. This aspect renders the game an exceptional vehicle for introducing new users to Web3. Additionally, there's a growing belief in Telegram's potential for mainstream adoption. Justin Hyun, director of investments at the TON Foundation, likened Telegram to a "Trojan horse" that could pave the way for widespread blockchain acceptance.

Looking Ahead

A few days ago, Binance listed $HMSTR on its platform, sparking speculation within the community that the token generation event for the popular Hamster game is imminent. However, with no official word from the team regarding the TGE or any potential airdrop, the community remains eagerly anticipating further updates. The latest game update has renewed players' hopes, but until more information is released, they can only focus on boosting their passive income through gameplay and completing daily challenges. The lack of transparency from the team leaves players with little choice but to wait and wonder what the future holds for this exciting new token.

Can Hamster Kombat stage the largest crypto airdrop in history?

Known for dedicating 60% of its HMSTR token airdrop to players, Hamster Kombat is making waves in the crypto world. Organizing the largest airdrop in crypto history is no small feat, as it would need to eclipse Uniswap's record-setting \$6.43 billion airdrop, currently the most valuable ever, as reported by CoinGecko. But Hamster Kombat is no stranger to breaking records, having already achieved the fastest product growth to 100 million users in just two months, a potential Guinness World Record. Beyond this impressive milestone, the project's tokenomics, while still  $\text{c}\text{q}\text{r}$ , promise exciting possibilities for players and investors alike. Stay tuned for more details on this game-changing airdrop and the future of Hamster Kombat.
