The price of Solana (SOL) has surpassed the bullish threshold of $241, amid a surge in trading volume on the ecosystem’s decentralized exchanges (DEXs) that seems to be fueled by an unrelenting meme coin mania.

By the end of the year, the Layer 1 blockchain Solana has the potential to reach a price of $500, as its superior speed and efficiency compared to competitors such as Ethereum continue to shape its market positioning.

If Solana can hold the break above the crucial $241 level, then the next target for bulls is $291, which is well into price discovery territory – the SOL all-time high is $259.

It would be a steep climb to hit $500 by the end of the year, but even a shallower ascent would easily capture $350-$400 price range targets.

Will Solana Hit $500 By End 2024?

Following the success of Bitcoin and Ethereum ETFs earlier this year, experts foresee Solana as the next potential candidate for SEC approval. The possibility of an SEC green light has sparked growing institutional and retail interest in SOL, further fueling its price momentum. Analysts predict that Solana’s price could reach the $500 mark by the end of 2024.

The trajectory of Solana’s price prediction remains resolutely bullish, with market sentiment suggesting the possibility of unprecedented highs in the near horizon. Should the current upward trends continue, Solana cryptocurrency could aim for the notable $300 mark in the coming months. With strong bullish sentiment, the price of Solana could soar by 110%, potentially reaching an impressive $500 milestone by the end of 2024.

Overall, Solana’s bullish momentum, driven by market optimism, the growth of DeFi, and ETF speculation, positions it for substantial gains. Although $500 remains an ambitious target, sustained demand and favorable conditions could drive SOL toward this milestone by the end of 2024.
