What is Frontier?

Frontier is a chain-agnostic platform that provides access to multiple chains (including Ethereum, Binance Smart Chain, BandChain, Kava, Harmony, etc.) and acts as an aggregation layer for decentralized financial products and services. Users can participate in protocol tracking and management, staking, token swaps, liquidity provision, Collateralized Debt Position (CDP) creation and monitoring, and more.

One of Frontier's unique features is the ability to integrate different wallets (including Metamask, FortMatic, Coinbase Wallet, Trust Wallet, and imToken, etc.), making it easier for users to participate in DeFi. Users can access DeFi application without transferring crypto assets between different wallets. This consolidation addresses the fragmentation of the DeFi industry, with each platform having its own wallet app.

In addition, Frontier's application allows users to manage their trades, such as staking management, DeFi positions, best rate asset swaps, liquidity mining, and collateralized debt position (CDP) creation and monitoring. Its smart contracts provide a secure and transparent platform for users to interact with DeFi applications.

Since its launch in April 2019, Frontier has seen great progress and is well funded to continue its mission of bringing together DeFi applications across different platforms, It received $1.85 million in seed funding from Alameda Research, CoinGecko and other well-known investors.

How does Frontier Work?

Frontier operates as a non-custodial wallet. Unlike traditional cryptocurrency exchanges, which store private keys to assets, Frontier users have complete control over their funds and private keys.

Frontier natively integrates with cryptocurrency wallets, decentralized applications (dApps) and blockchain networks, both EVM and non-EVM compatible. Users can interact with everything provided by Web3 on a central interface.

Frontier is also a blockchain aggregator that allows users to interact with assets on different networks without switching applications. It remains chain-independent and allows access to multiple protocols to form its aggregation layer.

In addition, Frontier offers a set of tools that break the limits of blockchain and can be used to track and manage portfolios.

In addition to cryptocurrencies, users can also store their NFT collections on Frontier and rely on Frontier's in-app DeFi browser to explore the popular NFT market.

The Frontier ecosystem comprises the following:

- Frontier DeFi Application
- DeFi Aggregator on Mobile Frontier Chain
- A Cosmos Based Decentralised Key Management Blockchain
- A unified API for all DeFi Protocols and Services

Frontier (FRONT) Rebranding

Since FRONT Coin is a token on Solana ecosystem invested by SBF, the project was greatly affected after the collapse of FTX Exchange.

However, in March this year, Frontier announced that it wanted to rebrand and create a new modular public chain Layer1 solution, rebranding as SelfChain. According to the situation of the previous coin exchange project, most of the initial flow of Self should be given to FRONT, and it takes time to verify the output of the node later, so it is unlikely to get the spot, which makes the FRONT coin show a continuous rise in March, reaching a maximum of 2.8 US dollars.

The future of Frontier (FRONT) depends on developments in the DeFi space. If DeFi is adopted more and more, the value and usage of FRONT tokens may also increase.

At present, most of DeFi aggregators focus on just one track and do not cover all DeFi applications. The Frontier team discovered and tried to solve this problem. With Frontier, users can participate in DeFi protocol tracking and management, staking, asset exchange, liquidity mining, and more. This advantage will also support the future development of FRONT.

In addition, with Frontier rebranding, the project may be able to shake off the shadow of the past SBF. It is believed that its price will also usher in a wave of increases, but how much is hard to predict.

According to changelly website, the price of FRONT coin is predicted to fluctuate between $0.02 and $2.62 in 2024. DigitalCoinPrice thinks FRONT is projected to hit $0.97 this year.
