The Shiba Inu community is one of the most well-organized communities in the crypto market driving the cryptocurrency towards delivering more value to users and not remaining a meme coin. A big area for the community is given that in the year 2021, Shiba Inu had risen 60x in 6 months. So, will Shiba Inu coin reach $1?

- Shiba Inu had an epic week with the burning of 915 million SHIB tokens. This significant burn occurred in 139 transactions over the past seven days, making it a historic event.
- Shiba Inu has been listed in one more crypto exchange. BTCC exchange announced the listing of Shiba Inu (SHIB) on its exchange. BTCC is an excellent crypto exchange offering trading services in US, Canada, and many countries in Europe. It announced the listing of Shiba Inu in March.

Will Shiba Inu Coin Reach $1? Detailed Analysis

To reach $1, Shiba Inu will have to rise more than 126k. At $1, Shiba Inu's market cap would be worth around $587 trillion, which is larger than the whole crypto market's value. This is incredibly unrealistic.

Even during SHIB's all-time high in October 2021, when the token was trading at $0.0000881, SHIB would have needed to increase in price by 11k times to hit a price of $1.

Let us look at all the data in hand to determine whether Shiba Inu coin can reach $1.

- Quality of Investment - Moderate
- Growth required to reach $1 - Not Feasible
- Market Cap at $1 - Not Feasible
- Time to reach $1 if Shiba Inu Grows at 25% every year - Not Feasible

Therefore, combining the criteria of quality of investment, growth required, and market cap at $1, it is impossible for Shiba Inu coin to reach $1.

While SHIB has seen massive price increases in the past, the chance of hitting large multiples becomes smaller as the market cap of the asset grows. For example, it would not be so outlandish to say that a cryptocurrency with a market cap of $10 million could potentially 100x in price over a long enough time period.

At its all-time high, SHIB had a market capitalization of $43 billion. At that kind of size, even a 2x price increase would have required a massive amount of capital to flow into SHIB. Achieving a 11k-fold multiple from a $43 billion market cap asset would be next to impossible.

For more context on why it's so unlikely anything could boost SHIB to $1 dollar, let's take the example of Bitcoin. At its absolute peak, BTC had a market capitalization of $1.27 trillion. If SHIB were to reach $1, it would have a market capitalization of approximately $587 trillion, which would be 462x larger than Bitcoin at its very peak.

At the time of writing, Apple is the world's most valuable company, with a market capitalization of about $3.06 trillion. Microsoft is in second place with a market cap of $2.51 trillion and Saudi Aramco comes third with a $2.09 trillion market cap. At a price of $1, SHIB would have a much larger market capitalization than the three largest companies in the world combined.

Therefore, we would say that Shiba Inu coin is unlikely to reach $1 at current level of circulating supply.

What May Affect the Shiba Inu Price?

Although SHIB is a utility token, it derives most of its value from being a meme coin. The project has a colossal community of over 1.2 million holders, yet the ShibaSwap DEX has just $22.5 million TVL.

Similarly to Shibarium, Shib The Metaverse is still unreleased. This shows that there is currently little utility-driven demand for the SHIB token.

The apparent price influencer on Shiba Inu is speculation. Investors will buy SHIB when they speculate the price will increase and sell when they believe it has topped out. Hype and community also play a significant role in speculation since when the hype starts to build; investors feel fear of missing out (FOMO) and rush to buy the coin.

Another influence on the price of SHIB is staking. When users stake Shiba Inu tokens, this is known as "burying", and they are actually providing liquidity to Shiba Inu liquidity pools. The entire amount of Shiba Inu was minted at its launch, so instead of being rewarded with SHIB, users are rewarded with the BONE governance token.

Essentially, this dries up the available amount of SHIB on the market, and because users are rewarded with BONE, it protects SHIB from excess sell pressure. In other words, staking reduces the available supply of SHIB, reducing sell pressure and helping boost the token's price.

Will Shiba Inu Coin Reach $1: Conclusion

Overall, if you're making a Shiba Inu price prediction, the $1 price target is totally out of the question. Based on the available data and current conditions, Shiba Inu coin is unlikely to reach $1 in the future.

The overall market cap of Shiba Inu has been fluctuating around $4 billion for the last couple of weeks. As we've shown, a price level of $1 would imply a completely unrealistic market cap of $587 trillion for Shiba Inu, which is more than the combined value of Bitcoin, Ethereum, and all other cryptocurrencies (the market cap of Bitcoin which is above $20,000 is around $450 billion).

However, this doesn't mean that it's impossible for the SHIB price to grow. If the crypto market enters another bull run, SHIB could very well be one of the meme coins to explode.

And with developers recently revealing Shiba Inu's own series of physical NFTs, Shibacals, the price of SHIB could easily witness some big gains in the near future.

This is particularly the case when layer-two network Shibarium is also expected to have its full launch on 15-16 August, providing Shiba Inu with more utility than it's ever had before.
