The listing of the cryptocurrency on major centralized exchanges, like as Bitfinex and OKX, caused this rise. According to market watchers, ZetaChain's cross-chain capabilities and the strong backing of a group of investors are the reasons behind this spike.

Concerning security in particular, ZetaChain's objective of connecting numerous blockchains introduces complications. The history of major attacks on networks like THORChain and pNetwork highlights the dangers of cross-chain transactions.

The team at ZetaChain is aware of the issues and is working hard to fix them. The platform plans to increase its Total Value Locked (TVL) slowly so that it can protect itself from outside interference.

Exploring Untapped Use Cases

When it comes to cryptocurrency, ZetaChain is in the front of innovation and might open a plethora of new possibilities. Stablecoins backed by Bitcoin, decentralized exchanges using Bitcoin as collateral, and other possibilities could be made possible by the platform's ability to promote interoperability among different blockchains.

There will be enormous benefits, especially for developers. In doing so, they will liberate themselves from the limitations of ecosystems that are limited to a single chain by gaining the ability to develop apps that can access the resources and features of other chains.

Chain Integration of BNB

The integration of BNB Chain into ZetaChain's strategy during its mainnet launch is a major point. Through this integration, the platform's reach is expanded, and the ecosystem is boosted with diversified functions and enhanced liquidity.
