What is Zoo?

Zoo is the latest sensation on Telegram and can be regarded as a successor to the tap-to-earn games that dominated the landscape in 2024. Unlike traditional tap-to-earn games, Zoo encourages users to create their own zoo while earning in-game tokens. Specifically, rather than tapping on random objects, players construct a zoo filled with exotic animals, each of which generates passive income as long as they are properly fed.

This game is designed for casual play, making it accessible to users who prefer a less demanding gaming experience. While it may not be the most complex game available, it arguably offers a more passive approach compared to many other tap-to-earn titles. However, like most games with unique concepts within the Telegram ecosystem, Zoo has rapidly gained popularity over recent weeks. To date, over 14 million accounts have engaged with the app, and this number continues to rise daily.

Notably, Zoo is already nearing the conclusion of its mining phase during which players can earn tokens in anticipation of an eventual airdrop. Details regarding how this process will function remain scarce; however, it is important to note that the mining phase will conclude on January 31.

How to Play Zoo on Telegram?

Getting started with Zoo is straightforward. After you get started, it barely needs to be played at all. To initiate, navigate to Telegram and launch the Zoo mini app, where you'll be guided through the opening stages of setting up your zoo.

First, select an empty square on the map and purchase an animal enclosure to occupy it. Upon acquiring at least one animal, you'll start start earning in-game Zoo tokens, which the developers say will correspond 1:1 with the airdropped on-chain tokens in the future airdrop. To maximize your hourly earnings, you can purchase more animals, with pricier ones yielding more tokens.

Your animals will earn tokens passively, provided they are fed by pressing the feeding button. However, this action requires Animal Feed, the other in-game currency also used for purchasing new animals. Thus, be sure not to spend all your cash on new additions at the expense of being able to feed your existing animals.

While this is the game's essence, you'll primarily focus on acquiring more Animal Feed, as it doesn't replenish automatically. You'll want to claim the daily login bonus, and complete tasks such as daily riddles or social actions to make sure you have enough Animal Feed to keep the creatures happy—and keep more money flowing into your zoo.

What is the Zoo Airdrop: Everything You Need to Know

The highly anticipated Zoo token airdrop is capturing the attention of the Telegram community, as the game has garnered immense popularity in the market. While differing from traditional telegram-tap-to-earn games, Zoo stands out as players construct their own zoos. Despite the listing date remaining undisclosed, players eagerly await its imminent revelation.

The Zoo's mining phase, which commenced in December, will run until January 31, 2025. During this period, participants can gather in-game tokens Once the month ends, you'll apparently no longer be able to earn Zoo tokens in-game, which presumably means your airdrop allocation will be set as the in-game Zoo tokens will correspond 1:1 with on-chain tokens. So if you end the month with a million Zoo tokens in game, then you should receive a million ZOO tokens from the airdrop.

The exact listing date for the Zoo airdrop remains a mystery, but a Binance report suggests a potential launch in February. However, players must await the official announcement for further updates on when they will receive their tokens.

What will be the ZOO Token Price at Launch?

It is speculated that Zoo's token will potentially launch on The Open Network (TON), as users can connect a TON wallet and spend TON to purchase specific benefits, including bundles of Animal Feed. While the developers have yet to officially confirm the launch of ZOO on TON, Telegram games have been known to switch ecosystems shortly before an airdrop, making TON the most plausible option at present.

Similar to many crypto airdrops, there is considerable speculation regarding the price of the ZOO token when it hits the market. Despite the uncertainty, traders and players alike are eagerly anticipating its performance once it's available. Analysts remain cautious in their predictions, expecting the price to follow a similar trend of other Telegram mini-game tokens, which often experience significant volatility.

Given the limited information available about the Zoo airdrop and token launch, it is challenging to conclusively determine the ZOO token price at this early stage. It is crucial to recognize that the token's price may deviate from expectations, as it hinges on factors such as token supply, crypto airdrop acquisitions, and more. Therefore, game players should await further updates before drawing any conclusions.

Conclusion

The Zoo is gaining traction among Telegram users, as the game assigns the simple task of building the Zoo in return for in-game tokens. With the upcoming Zoo airdrop, the players will receive the same in-game token for the on-chain token in 1:1 criteria. As the Zoo game's airdrop is capturing the spotlight, the focus for players is increasingly shifting toward the upcoming airdrop.

As the January 31 deadline for the Zoo game's mining phase draws nearer, players eagerly anticipate clearer information on the airdrop listing and the ZOO token price. In the coming weeks, more details may be disclosed, providing both players and traders with the necessary information they need to navigate this exciting new project in the world of crypto airdrops.
